

WALKER KNOWS HIS OWN MIND, SAYS WALKER

AUSTRIAN'S JUDGE CHANCE FOR "GO-GETTER" AT LONDON CONFERENCE

James J. Walker, former mayor of New York, engaged by International News Service to cover the world economic conference, today continues his descriptions of the proceedings.

By JAMES J. "JIMMY" WALKER
(Copyright 1933, by International News Service)

Geological Museum, London, June 17 (INS)—After four days of oratorical pyrotechnics, window-dressing and political fence-mending, the statements of the World Economic Conference temporarily suspended meetings of the parent body and today took their respective places behind their counters in the different committee rooms.

They shed their formal frock coats, rolled up their sleeves and prepared to do some high and fancy log-rolling.

The entire body is divided between two commissions, one monetary and financial, and the other economic. The two commissions are divided into committees and the committees are divided into sub-committees (shall I send you a blue-print?). Anyhow, every delegate has a place to go—with an idea or a place to get one.

They are not the kind of politicians who have been a student of government and has served his constituents with honesty—and that experience which he has gathered over a long political life will stand him in good stead in the present instance.

Coz Starts Ball Rolling

Former Gov. Cox of Ohio, president of the financial commission, opened yesterday morning with a very brief, business-like keynote speech. He said, "Gentlemen, let's get to work," and the members only had to look at him to know he meant what he said.

I realize that I, too, have fallen into the habit of referring to manipulations and fixers as politicians. But there are politicians and politicians. Many times the kind of politician who has all the earmarks of a nasty crack-up unhappy about his own men who are studying experience in politics and government are placed in the same category as the old-fashioned banker of the shifty, integrity and honor can only be called a banker, so there are some other men called by the same name who have used their power and position to their own ends by defrauding those who have trusted them.

The same distinction obviously follows in every profession and every activity. Cox is a politician as every statesman must be, but he is the kind of politician who has been a student of government and has served his constituents with honesty—and that experience which he has gathered over a long political life will stand him in good stead in the present instance.

"He Knows His Own Mind"

He knows himself, knows psychology and knows his own mind, and when it comes to dealing with foreign diplomats he won't have to go to the coast-room to get their number.

And talking about personalities, have you met the British Chancellor of Austria, Dr. Engelbert Dollfuss? He is a genuine minister of foreign affairs and a minister of agriculture, and he is a genuine grow-up who will be a whole cabinet. The man only weighs about as much as a hen, but he has every inch of his body there in the line of courage.

He made no hit with the Hitlerites when he told them in unmistakable terms to keep their hands off the streets and to get out of the street and tend to the Nazi knitting at home.

And just by way of a gesture with his speech, he said, "I have waited Hitler's press agent into the role of star boarder." And Vienna, however, is the only man so far who can say of the conference, "I name, I saw, I conquered."

He arrived in London in a limousine car, mounted the rostrum, looked the boy over and spoke his piece. He took them into his confidence, took them into the lobby and took them into the conference.

Fireworks Blast Alarms Winthrop

Several hundred dollars worth of fireworks and aerial bombs exploded in a group of committee parades in the Ocean Spray section of Winthrop early today, causing considerable excitement.

Doors of three of the car stables were blown off and a fire started was quickly extinguished. The fire was quickly extinguished by the fire department. The fire was quickly extinguished by the fire department.

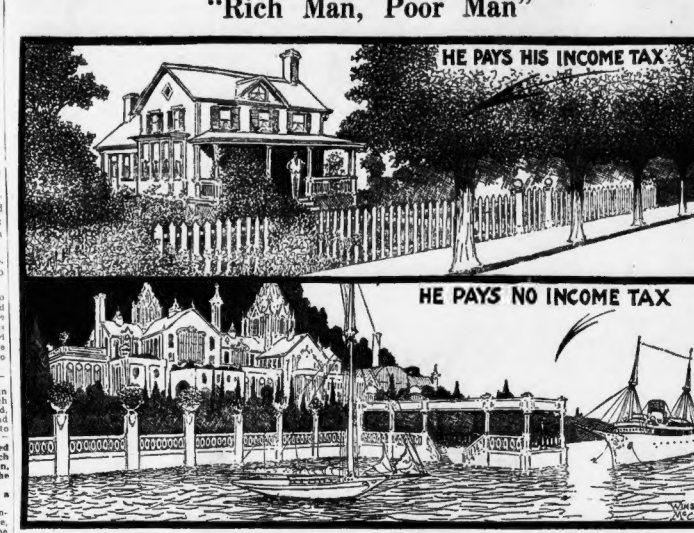

Virginia Ham Sandwich Leads All in World Parley Cafe

London, June 17 (AP)—On the surface it's all a very serious business. This World Economic Conference, but behind the scenes you will find a lighter side.

Take the matter of what to eat when away from home. Between the plenary session speeches and committee meetings, the delegates, together in a special restaurant stocked with nearly 100 different dishes and drunk in any part of the world.

Among the concessions to American appetites are lemon pie and Virginia ham sandwiches.

There is much fraternizing and socializing. The delegates are enjoying a special example of the world's national dishes—caviar and waffles and vodka. Chinese chicken

HE PAYS HIS INCOME TAX

HE PAYS NO INCOME TAX

"It is an inequitable tax, an injurious tax, an undemocratic tax, creating class distinctions; an un-American tax, creating class antagonisms, dangerous to the peace and harmony of the nation. The sales tax should be substituted for it, not added to it."

The special session of the Seventy-third Congress has failed to deal adequately with this problem. That business remains over for the regular session next January.

WELCOMES ROOSEVELT TO CHINESE STAB, BOAT IF HE'S NOT SLEEPING

Marion, June 17—If President Roosevelt doesn't spend all his time sleeping on the Ambergick II, as he admits he may do, he hopes to navigate the ship to Campbell, as he has in former days.

It was along this same rock-bound sea coast that Roosevelt as a boy of 14 skippered his own first vessel. He knows the swell of the sea and he knows his goal—Campbell Island, N. B., the family summer ground near the tip of Maine.

Twelve years ago this summer Franklin Roosevelt, defeated candidate for the vice-presidency after a strenuous campaign, was stricken with infantile paralysis. On June 28 he returns again for the first time—President of the United States.

Fresh and smiling, in spite of his stern looks with Congress in the last few days, his appearance was the subject of comment on all sides.

LEIT. BROWN A 'UNIFORMED GIG' SAYS BUSHNELL

LASHES OFFICER CARTER WILL CASE

Hits at the Burning of Notes on Day Eccentric Spinster Died

Lieut. James Trimble Brown, aide to Maj. Gen. Fox Connor, and beneficiary under the will of Miss Nellie P. Carter, Boston eccentric millionaire, was characterized today in Suffolk probate court as a "uniformed gigolo."

Atty. Robert T. Bushnell, representing the ten cousins who seek to have the will broken, made the charge during a short rebuttal argument.

"Lieut. Brown," Bushnell said, "burned a box of papers the day after Miss Carter died. Luckily they were not all burned, made the charge during a short rebuttal argument."

SHOULD APOLOGIZE
"With bated breath," Bushnell continued, "my brother attorneys stated that some generals would testify. In fact, from one of the letters written by a general and read here, I would say that the cousin should apologize, for the burning of the will or anything of the kind or any of the others."

"We haven't got generals, interested parties, friends, friends or Lovells. We have people employed in hotels for their backs and others who had Miss Carter under observation. We have documents from these people's own pens which corroborate our contentions."

Bushnell said there was no witness on the stand whose integrity could be questioned, but that there were merely arguments for the court to decide upon.

"MONSTERS, ADVENTURERS"
"We're not afraid of monsters. In fact, we look forward to meeting them at the trial of the will," Bushnell said in conclusion.

Damon E. Hall, counsel for Arthur H. Wellman, Miss Carter's attorney, who received $500,000 under the will, called the cousins "monsters" and "adventurers," who had not called on Miss Carter during her life, but who sent her letters about the will.

Percy Albion, counsel for the Arlington Street Clinic, representing the Museum of Fine Arts and Phillips Ketchum, for Mrs. Webster, and her daughter Stella and the Leland family also presented arguments against the framing of jury issues.

Judge Dolan took the case under advisement.

$100,000 LOSS IN SOMERVILLE CHURCH FIRE

Suspect Hunted After Winter Hill Baptist Building Blazes

Fire, for which a general alarm was sounded, destroyed the interior of the Winter Hill Baptist Church on School st., Somerville, today, with loss estimated by fire officials to be between $75,000 and $100,000.

Fire and police officials said it might have been set, and are seeking a man seen at the rear of the church shortly after midnight. It was the fourth big fire in Somerville within a week and two of the others were of suspicious origin.

Large crowds gathered to the scene despite the early hour. Firemen were ordered from the building after they had battled the flames for an hour because of the fear that the cupola would collapse.

Thick smoke enveloped the residence of Rev. Nicholas M. Mont, pastor, and his family, next door to the church, at 214 School st., forcing out his wife and daughter, Geneva, 12.

A minister went to the church immediately after he telephoned in the alarm, and saved the organ, while his son, Edna, 16, saved the large Bible from the pulpit.

The Ruth class of girls of the Sunday school had a social in the vestry last night, but did not come.

William Ransom, the sexton, of 15 Otis st., East Somerville, said there was no sign of fire when he left at 11 o'clock.

William H. Hilling, 204 School st., said that his sister, Miss Emma Hilling, saw a man at the rear of the church shortly after midnight. Hilling went out to see if the man was the same as the man lying on the grass. The man did not respond to questions and Hilling was at the church when he was taken to the hospital.

By JAMES J. SMITH (Boston Evening American Staff Writer)

Barnstable, June 17—Cape Cod court today heard testimony in what awaited resumption of the Buck brothers' trial Monday in what is known as "McMath Day."

Neil C. McMath, father of the seven but plucky kidnap victim, is due to be questioned next with the probability that his examination will force the delay of the 10-day trial to testimony until Tuesday.

Much of Mrs. McMath's testimony expected to be a revelation of the anguish she spent from the time Peggy was snatched from the front of the Harwich village school on May 2 until her return four days later.

Canton, Mass., June 17 (AP)—A jury which heard a witness testify he drank 45 bottles of 3.2 per cent beer in a day and went home sober ruled it non-intoxicating. It acquitted a dealer, Jewel Bosley, accused of violating the state prohibition laws.

The grounds cover 220 acres of pine groves, hills, valleys and meadow, and border a picturesque lake. Instruction will be given in swimming and other outdoor sports.

HARVARD NINE FACES TUFTS AT OVAL

Thousands of T. H. students were guests of the college today for the annual game with the Crimson. Having used three players against Boston College Coach Kenneth Nash had but one worded man left. Felix Andruskiewicz was the hurler and the Jumbos' hopes rested entirely upon his arm. The game time was 3:30 p. m.

Johnny Grinnell, a sophomore who plays regularly at second base, assumed the mound duty for the Jumbos in the seventh and held the visitors at bay for the remainder of the game. Grinnell had seen no action at the pitcher's berth this season, but he fanned four and passed but one in his three innings.

East Bridgewater, June 17—Outboard racing returns to local waters

The leading speedboat pilots of the country will open up throttles in the inaugural sweepstakes today over the new course of the New England Racing Association at Robins pond here.

New England's outdoor swimming season opens tonight at the Nautical Pool, with the meet under the auspices of the Boston Swimming Association.

Three championships are on the program, with Gordon Connolly of the B. S. A., the mens senior 220-yard titleholder, as the only defender.

A feature is Alice Bridge's assault on the national 220-yard freestyle record for the long course. Connolly has no easy task. In Richard Trese, a teammate and University of California swimmer, she has a powerful opponent. The same is also true of Matthew Christow, skip of the Olneyville Boys' Club.

The favorite in the men's 100-meter breast stroke scratch race will be Charles Hayward of Huntington school.

Among women's junior 100-yard freestyle field includes Mildred Levy of the Olneyville Boys' Club, Ann Hilary, Ann Conway of the W. S. A. of Brookline, Frances Iva, Helen

ON TONIGHT

Chicago, June 17 (AP)—A blinding rainstorm hit U. S. C. winners of the I. C. A. meet, and hindered upholding the honors of the middle distance runners. The winners of the national collegiate track and field meet were drenched and slipped under the floodlights at Soldier Field tonight.

U. S. C. national Jack Keller, Ohio State, national collegiate hurdling champion. The Buckeye was the first to start the race, but before the meet, fell on the first hurdle. When he staggered, he bent, and the cinders there were ugly.

ANNUAL BROOKLINE RACE HIGHLIGHTS

SEVEN EVENTS ON CLYDE PARK CARD TODAY

By GEORGE W. GRIMM
A second day of thrills and excitement came 10,000 horse lovers to the Country Club, Brookline today where, in the Eastern Horse Club's 43rd annual meet, six events were carded—three on the flat and three steeplechase events.

Of the first day of racing on Thursday is any criterion, today's program at the Clyde Park course was to be the best in the history of the Brookline meetings. On Monday the scene is shifted to Race and in Framingham.

McKENNEY IN THE RING
Only one feature of Thursday's stirring events was missing today—the brilliant riding of Rigan McKenney, star gentleman jumper. McKenney was pulled out of the event yesterday and suffered a serious injury to the right wrist and in the left arm.

McKenney will be missed today, but even his absence didn't dim the luster of the day's battles.

Today's opening race, the Vine Brook, over the mile and one-eighth distance, had the favorite, a 10-year-old gelding named Breda, to finish in the money.

Getting a Sharkey's Eye View

Oh, it's work, work with the Galloping Gondioli, and no two ways about it. Here's Primo Carnera having a few lambasters along the ears of a luckless partner in a training ring walk. The big fighter is really stepping out now, with his title fight with Jack Sharkey in the Garden Bowl, June 29.

And here, you are advised, is a picture of da Preem in his prime. That gaunt wolfish look peering out at you behind the overstuffed punching gloves is supposed to indicate that the Preem is in full fighting fit. Notice the minute adjustment. Maybe there's a wisp in the House of David calling Primo, if Sharkey lands a sudden right to cliff-kick him. This is not the face you would like to see staring at you in a dark alley, hey?

Fish 'n' Game

For the price of $100 Edward G. Parrot, Sam Simpson, this week obtained a 10-year lease of 5 miles of trout and salmon waters along the Ipswich river in New Brunswick.

This was nearly twice the figure the government would have been willing to let it go for, but the bidding at public auction was spirited.

For Big Bout

Now this is more like the Primo remembered from last Sharkey-Carnera fight. As flat on his back as the paving around Sam Marco in the old country. Primo may just be putting the idea into Sharkey's head. In which case he has no one to blame but himself. But what a study those feet make!

One of the best shots of the Friday matches was Frank Voreberg's iron to the 17th green. The ball was on the pin all the way and came to rest about 10 feet from the cup. He got his deer.

Diamond Dust

The Giants fell back into a tailspin with the Cardinals, as far as same won and lost are concerned, because of Sam Laine, whom they sold to the St. Louis Cardinals in exchange for Lefty O'Doul and Vernon Clifton just the day before.

"Diamond" in his first game as a Dodger, came through with a home run and knocked in another tally as his new mates whiffed his old pals, 3 to 1. The cards, who were off, have won one more and lost one more game than the Terrymen.
